

Silent Scream

How to deal with his Sponsored's anger, resentment and jealousy... it's not as bad as you may think!

You can practically feel her eyes burning holes into your back whenever you share the same room—that Minion girl your husband now sponsors. You think she resents you? Try HATES you! Not that she ever dare vocalise her toxic treacle of humiliation, fear, envy and bitterness at having been reduced to the legal status of a mere concubine. For even though it is her Sponsor she must please, it is always his wife that is the target of so much pent up anger. The woman in his life to whom she will always lose-- YOU.

Many Prime women chose to charitably ignore it. For successful and powerful Prime women, the idea of competing with a Minion girl is laughable on the face of it. Prime women are proud, accomplished, intelligent, attractive and monogamous. The Prime woman defines the very ideals of Beauty and Grace, just as Prime man is a paragon of masculine virtues such as courage, strength and genius.

Minions on the other hand are constantly reminded of what they are in the Great Correction in multiple ways every day. But make no mistake- they lost their former power precisely because of their nature. Their males—or 'mimps'—are weak, cowardly and stupid. They are unable to protect their own females and all Minions know it. The Minion female—'minx'—is a naturally promiscuous and hypergamous, genetically designed to seek powerful protectors to survive. The Prime man is a natural focus for them.

They literally pale before the beauty of Prime women and feel it keenly. There is a reason for the cliched minx—the homely pallid skippy eager to offer herself up in ways repugnant to a Prime woman just to earn some small bit of Prime approval. It is because this is what most 'sugarmouthed' minxs are—despite their pre-war pretensions at culture and civilisation.

The Sponsorship Program was instituted for many reasons, but one of the key operational principles is the absolute need to impose and keep order in Primeva. Politics, as PRF ideologues rightly point out, streams south of sex. Control the sexual dynamic in any society and it is possible to institute a durable hierarchy. Minion males were defeated and therefore lost any claim to Minion females. Sponsorship is designed to reward our own people as well as provide a set of rules Minions can understand and follow in order to secure their own future. It is nowhere nearly oppressive as overseas critics suggest. Once a sufficient number of Minion generations have been educated and acculturated to the 'new normal', such lingering resentment will gradually become acceptance.

Her 18-35 Sponsorship Life Stage: 17 Years A 'Minx'

Of course, Sponsorship is also necessarily limited to the ruling Prime elite, due to the total number of Minions. That number has been limited by government policy to ensure a sustainable Prime racial dominance. This means that Sponsorship eligibility is limited to Party members, military officers, business magnates and others, as determined by the Secretary General and Central Committee. However, in order to avoid jealousy, many brothels have been licensed by the government to ensure that ANY Prime, regardless of social rank, has ready and affordable access to Minion females on a commercial basis.

Sponsorship is, no doubt, a sign of high social status. While lower and working class Primes can and do satisfy themselves with commercial grade Minion females eager to find some way to make a living, middle class and upper class Minions instead select a single Minion female to sponsor, thereby announcing their privileged lifestyle to their peers. Even within the Sponsorship Registry, there's a wide spread between the "P List" and the Public Registry, with elites claiming the most sought after Minion females with backgrounds in the old Dominion order. Minion families anticipate registration at the age of 18, at which point they may be assigned National Service or be placed in the Public Registry for Sponsorship. Those unclaimed are assigned to National Service, after which they again will be added to the Public Registry, until they reach the age of 35. At 35, Minion females are no longer available for Sponsorship in order to allow them to meet their Breeding Quota.

Sponsorship rules are simple. Any eligible Prime may apply to sponsor a female Minion between the ages of 18 to 34. The Sponsorship

Term is five years, with an option to extend that term up until the age of 35, for an additional Sponsorship Fee. The Sponsorship Registry Authority evaluates all applications and makes final judgement on approvals. Once Sponsored, only the Sponsor may exercise any authority over the female Minion—no other Prime may interfere with the Minion.

What is so galling about criticism from overseas about the Sponsorship system is that it in fact affords the average Minion female protection and privileges she would not otherwise enjoy. Employment, housing, marriage and childbirth opportunities are denied to non-Sponsored Minions. Non-Sponsored Minion females are subject to casual servicing by Prime adults and have few legal protections. Despite this, female Minions still resent the system—and the Sponsor's Spouse—with internalised defiance!

With all that being said, Prime women should feel only gratitude for the existence of these petulant, ungrateful Minion girls. Why? Precisely because of the function they serve in your household. Minion females are stress relief targets for Prime men. They perform tasks Prime women utterly reject. Minion girls are especially suited for their new societal role. They know little shame, have no innate dignity or honour and are parasitically dependent on Prime civilisation to allow them to live. Their very sexual attraction for Prime men is equally outweighed by the disgust they have for them. Without the wanton submissiveness of Minion females, Prime men would have a far more shallow appreciation of Prime women. By comparison, Prime women shine and are rightly idealised in our society—while Minion females are considered disposable playthings. So be grateful—Minion girls are willing to serve a need in Primeva that Prime women could never be capable of doing. Minion girls are willing to do the work Prime women despise!

Where does all this leave us? We still have that neurotic, angry little Minx your husband has selected staring darts at you! As a Prime woman of privilege, you don't have to just accept this situation. In fact, it will be better for you, your husband and the minx, if you become a bit more involved. Managed Sponsorship is becoming more popular as Prime couples begin to experience the benefits of jointly managing the Sponsored girl. After all, the minx is just as much a status symbol for you as she is for your husband!

Here are a few strategies you might consider in recalibrating the relationship and making the Sponsored Minion realise just how important YOU are in the scheme of things. You're not just the wife of the Sponsor legally—you are also the joint Sponsor as well!

Rewards- Try carrots instead of sticks! Minions are simple, greedy and eager to mimic their betters. There are rewards that you can offer in exchange for a more positive and respectful attitude towards you. Minions live a desperate life, far removed to the ones they used to lead. Small gifts that cost you nothing often elicit the most appreciative responses. Consider these trifles to surprise and delight the typical minx:

Old Bra- You were going to toss it in the bin anyway but what you may not know is that for a normal Minion, a decent bra is simply out of reach. Minion-grade clothing is poor, if colourful. The typical Prime-grade bra would cost a Minion female a month's salary. Letting her have it—even if she will probably have to stuff it—will thrill her!

Pilled Panties- The ones consigned to the back of your drawer that you keep meaning to throw out? Give them to the minx! She'll secretly be over the moon at the prospect of wearing such a luxurious item, even if it has been worn out by Madame Sponsor.

face!

Used Lipstick- You don't give it a second thought but even a small nub of lipstick, especially a luxury Prime brand, represents glamour to the destitute Minion girl. Let her enjoy what's left and watch a smile bloom on her rancid milky Hen's Night Gift- It was meant as a joke and you were ready to bin it. Give it to Minxy and let her feel like a little Minion celebrity!

Joke Gift- It was meant to be a joke but, again, Minion females don't know any better. Let her bathe herself in it and make sure she expresses her heartfelt thanks!

Restrictions- Minions need rules in order to survive. They can easily be extended into their Sponsorship duties. There are no limits to the restrictions you may place on her, but make sure you and your husband both agree to them. You may set the rules-- but he will most likely be enforcing them! Suggestions include:

Primary Service Mode- Restrict her to offering oral sex to her Sponsor. This eliminates intimacy and still achieves Sponsor stress relief goals. What you've heard is true— Minions of BOTH sexes are resigned to oral receptacle status and can become quite expert at it! If the Sponsor requires more range, extend to anal sex. Female minions may be less disposed to anal, but they will offer it with as much alacrity as required. Nix any vaginal penetration—this should be the sole pleasure of Madame

Sponsor and shouldn't be wasted on a minx!

Slutwear- Restrict her service wardrobe in ways that emphasise the difference between Sponsored Girl and Madame Sponsor! Colour and style of lingerie are often considered. The Sponsored Girl is often restricted from wearing the favourite colour of the Sponsor and Madame Sponsor, as a sign of respect. Likewise, you might prohibit the Sponsored Girl from wearing lingerie of any material but cotton. This also is a reminder to both Sponsor and Sponsored Girl that only Madame Sponsor is sophisticated and elegant enough to wear satins, silks or laces.

Medical- Minion females can be notoriously bad tempered.

Prescriptions can often be utilised to improve Minion moods. A daily dosage of Hornical (or Lesbinitol, depending on the Sponsored Girl's duties) will inform the minx's mood. No more pouts or sulks!

Marriage- Virtual all Minion females dream of marrying a Minion male. No matter how much of a 'mimp' he might be, marriage is a sign of status, even for Sponsored minxs. As her Co-Sponsor, you very much have a say in approving or rejecting any proposed matches.

Since Sponsored Minions require a Sponsor's permission to wed, you have complete latitude to use the privilege as you see fit. Once this leverage is exercised, even the most peevish minx will learn to hide her resentment. And of course, Sponsors also have the right to dissolve 'unsuitable' marriages, providing future leverage as well!

their husbands- otherwise you have the complete right to have her bred with anonymous Minion Spunk via natal hosing. That threat will reduce the reserved Minion to a quivering mouse!

Pregnancy- Like marriage, pregnancy is also considered too important a decision to be left

Sharing Her- 'Equal Allocation' is fast becoming a popular Sponsorship option. 'Sharing is caring' is a mantra many Prime couples now adopt. Minion females enter Sponsorship knowing full well they have responsibilities to both Sponsor and Madame Sponsor. While many Prime men are still opposed to this much sharing, more modern minded Primes have no issue sharing what should be an equal benefit of the Great Correction.

The Complex Madame Sponsor—Sponsored Relationship solely to the discretion of a mere minx. While female Minions between 18-35 must meet current Breeding Quotas as set by the government if they are physically able to (in order to maintain racial resource ratios), female Minions must apply to their Sponsor to breed, as well as specify the preferred partner. It is then up to the Sponsor to approve, reject or propose an alternative breeding partner. Most Sponsors have no objection to Minions mating with their spouse, but did you know that you do have the right to assign an alternative which the female minion may not even know? Proper and positive attitude and service should be the prerequisite to being allowed to become impregnated by Discipline- We're not talking about rumoured-about dungeon rooms here (although you may suit yourself on this count!). Often the simplest applications have the most impact. Respond to any sign of disrespect with a hard, sharp slap across her whey face can transform a recalcitrant minx into a cringing inferior. Many traditionalists use ear boxing in the same way. And there is no substitute for a large wooden hairbrush for the frequent adjustment of attitude the Minion female regularly requires!

Chastity- Prime Sponsors are often irked by the – quite natural—desire of Minion girls to marry and have a litter of little Minions. In order to do that, they need to marry Minion boys and this provokes typical Prime male pride. Of course, Madame Sponsor can use this to YOUR advantage. Where Mister Sponsor will usually order the mimp spouse immediately into chastity—no wonder Castus Steel shares are so high!-- and order a daily dosage of Denygra, they rarely insist on managing the minx in the same way. This is a wasted opportunity to create yet another method to adjust Minion attitudes. Mister Sponsor will soon see the benefits of putting them BOTH in chastity as there's nothing as randy as an unbelted minx! Likewise, you can put pressure on the mimp as well—if his little wifey isn't as pretty and pleasing as her Sponsors desire, it means he'll be waiting that much longer for whatever spunk release he's allowed! Both the minx and her mimp will soon learn that keeping the Sponsors happy is a dependable way to earn release and precious time with each other.

Early Termination- No, it isn't what you think! It simply refers to the process where you surrender your Sponsorship Rights. This allows another Prime to take your old minx on and lets you begin the application process to replace her. Why is this often the most chilling sponsorship management option? Minion females marked as 'Early Termination' Sponsorship Registry candidates are typically considered 'additional risk'. This usually discourages Prime male Sponsors and these Minion females thus wind up being Sponsored by their least preferred sponsors—older Prime women. 'Early Term' minxs rarely experience intercourse with Prime Men or Minion males once so sponsored—a prospect that irrationally terrifies them.

Once properly managed, a Sponsored Minion female isn't just a treasure— she's a living symbol of YOUR sophistication and style! Madame Sponsor can and should take pride in a well turned out Sponsored Girl. Using a combination of carrots and sticks, a minx can be firmly transformed from a bitter, resentful 'sugarmouth' into a sweet, grateful and fetching bed warmer for BOTH of her Sponsors.

Is it worth the effort? That depends on you, but if you want to imagine the benefits, just consider what a Happy Sponsorship might look like:

...the minx's head bouncing between you and your husband's legs, lapping like a pink kitten...

...the absolute joy on her pale face when you let her know you've convinced Mister Sponsor to allow she and her mimp to ‘celebrate’ their wedding anniversary—out of chastity...

...the bliss on her face as her mimp mounts her...

...the guilt as she imagines the mimp on top of her is actually her Prime Sponsor...

...and that she is YOU— her beautiful, impossibly superior Madame Sponsor.

At the heart of it, a Happy Sponsorship is understanding that the Sponsored, in her heart of hearts, doesn't hate or resent you. She dreams of something she can never be—she wants to be YOU, a Prime Woman who represents everything she craves. You are her natural role model. And in realising this, the Minion female understands that it is not you she hates—it is herself and her intrinsic inadequacies. Thus the sublime sadness of the Minion girl is actually the celebration of Prime Femininity. This is the reward— nothing impresses more than showcasing a Sponsored Minx that finally understands and accepts her natural role in the new Primeva!
